Excerpt: . . . 11 The NIH ORWH supports a number of research grants in the area of Diabetes Prevention. The National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases (NIDDK) currently has the Diabetes Prevention Program (DPP). This multi-centered randomized trial is designed to determine whether type 2 diabetes can be prevented or delayed in a population of high-risk individuals. Included in the high-risk population are women with a history of gestational diabetes mellitus (GDM) and individuals with impaired glucose tolerance. OBESITY The NIH has a very active and well-coordinated program of research on obesity that involves many institutes and centers. Examples of some current research avenues include: the genetic underpinnings of obesity; the molecular and neuroendocrinological regulation of food intake, energy expenditure, and fat storage; epidemiological studies to help understand the etiologies, interrelationships, course, and health effects of overweight and obesity and weight change among children and pregnant women; prevention studies targeted at the population level with special emphasis on high risk populations; and intervention studies including modification of behavior, activity and dietary patterns and the use of pharmacological agents. The National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases (NIDDK) has initiated a major education translation activity focused on the topic of overweight and obesity. This initiative includes a national information service, the Weight-control Information Network (WIN), which provides health professionals and consumers with science-based material on obesity, weight control, and nutrition. WIN provides fact...
