Hoog Et Al: Argument of Mr. Edmond L. Goold, and Mr. John W. Dwinelle, for the Defendants The officers of the war steamer Lancaster had previous knowledge that the defendants had come on board the Salvador, in the port of Panama, in the disguise of passengers, with the intent to rise upon the officers and crew when she should have reached the high seas, to capture her, and to convert her into a cruiser, in the service of the Government of the so-called Confederate States. The officers of the war steamer Lancaster permitted the defendants to go to sea peaceably, on the Salvador, but when the high seas were attained, arrested them. In their possession were found small arms adequate and proper for the contemplated rising upon the officers and crew, and the Confederate flag. Also the following Instructions. Confederate States Of America, [Duplicate.] Navy Department, Richmond, May 7th, 1864. Acting Master T. E. Hogg, C. S. Navy, Richmond, Va.: You will proceed with the men under your command from Wilmington, by the shortest and safest route, to the port of Panama. And at that port you will take passage on board either the Guatamala or San Salvador, the two Federal ocean steamers trading between Panama and Realejo. After reaching the high sea you will consider upon and devise a means to capture the vessel, in the name of the Confederate States, and effect the capture without fail. Your conduct towards the people of the captured vessel will be guided by that humanity which ever characterizes the conduct of our Naval officers. Having secured the steamer, organized your crew,...
