By Umberto Greco

AUTHORHOUSE, United States, 2004. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 201 x 127 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.FBI Chief Investigator Edward Ross has his hands full all of a sudden because of an internal crime. A call from a former New York City rookie cop recruited to help during a JFK Airport sting has panicked. The rookie had worked undercover with a gang of cargo handlers until he was discovered. After exposure he was placed in the Witness Protection Program and relocated. The rookie claims that a guy who also worked at JFK at the time recognized him. He is afraid that this guy has underworld connections and fears for his life. Ross s research uncovers that there was a problem at the time of the sting, specifically; one of the criminals claimed that a bag that was taken from him when arrested contained more than one and a quarter million dollars, now it s missing. The prime suspect seems to be the former bureau head of the sting operation. The mystery revolves around a missing lawman that was killed during a car fire the night of sting, the casket he was buried in and...
