Already our Association has been requested by the registrars of our leading college members to provide a means for collecting the freshman records of the students coming from the various high schools on the North Central list, and that our high-school inspectors give due weight to these records in determining the status of each high school. This gives some opportunity to evaluate the best element of every school, the inspiration and personal leadership of its teachers, an element whose value no inspector with all his counting and measuring can ever compute. When we read of the world s famous teachers, Pestalozzi, Arnold, Mark Hopkins, Agassiz, Mary Lyon, we find little said of endowment, or degrees or buildings or equipment or working hours as elements of power. When we listened to our president s address this morning we were again reminded for how little they count after all in determining the character of the student, his standards and purposes, the most vital elements of his power. How dangerous it is then to undertake to determine the standing and opportunity of an institution upon so inconsequential a factor as the relative number of its senior college students. THE JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL, THE SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL AND THE JUNIOR COLLEGE. The fusion of educational determinations from decade to decade has given rise to the formation of new...
